Sharetec's Remote Signatures

INDIANAPOLIS, IN -- Bradford-Scott Data Corporation, an owner/distributor of the Sharetec System, announces that they are now offering Remote Signature Capture to their more than 300 credit unions nationwide.

Remote Signatures makes it possible to service members who are unable to visit the credit union's office while also meeting the rigorous standards required for obtaining a secure and legally binding signature required for loans and forms that credit unions provide to their members. Once the member has been approved for the loan, the loan officer sends a message with a link to the appropriate documents and in a separate message the PIN access code as one of the steps in validating their identity. Upon submission of their signature the document is available for viewing and is then forwarded on to the next person in the application for approval process. Once all parties have signed and reviewed the forms, a legal digital copy is retained by the credit union for future record and authentication.

In addition to providing improved member service, the credit union will also reduce shipping, postage and printing costs, streamline the approval process and dramatically decrease the time it takes to close a loan. Remote Signatures are also being credited for improving the auditing of documents because it shows a clear chain of processing to both management and examiners.

"With the growth of the web and credit union access outside of traditional "brick and mortar" branches, Remote Signatures provide a way for a credit union to offer the same member experience both in and outside of the office to their members." remarked Keane Kulak, Regional Director of Bradford-Scott. "It's no wonder that Gartner, a leading IT research firm, recently stated that the Remote Signature market grew 48 percent in 2011. As an example, one credit union closed a branch office several states away, but they still want to find loans from those out-of-state members. The Remote Signatures program is the perfect tool for that credit union."
